Overview

Although the dream of creating artificial life is almost as old as human civilization itself, the robot is one of the emblematic creations of modernity. This course approaches the robot not just as a technological but a cultural artifact, considering the cultural mythology of the robot that has emerged in literature, film, television, and other media over the past century. As it will show, the robot has functioned as a screen for the projection of both utopian and dystopian fantasies about the future, and the possibilities and dangers of technology. In the age of artificial intelligence, these anxieties around the robot have become particularly acute. Ultimately, the figure of the robot enables us to explore perhaps the most fundamental question of our existence: what does it mean to be human?

Policies & Protocol

Attendance

Keene State policy: A student who misses more than 3 weeks in the first 10 weeks of the semester (regardless of the reason, including excused absences and emergencies) must withdraw from the course. The student must follow the regular withdrawal procedure. The complete KSC attendance policy can be viewed at <http://www.keene.edu/registrar/policy/policy.cfm#6>

Readings & assignments

Readings assigned for each week should be completed prior to the class meeting. Assignments are due at the beginning of the class unless stated otherwise. Please do not email submissions.

Discussion & participation

Class discussion (i.e. your participation) is one of the most essential parts of this class. Please come to class fully prepared. Also keep in mind that we always need to work together in order to create a productive and inspiring academic environment by being polite and respectful toward other students' comments and ideas. In order to ensure full participation and engagement in class, the use of laptops and/or mobile devices during lectures, discussion, and screenings is not permitted.

Academic honesty

We understand and agree that we are participating in higher education. We respect this process and will act as mature and responsible individuals in it. To ensure that, all students are expected to hand in original written work. Using other people's words without proper attribution constitutes plagiarism. Plagiarism and any other forms of cheating will result in an F for the assignment and may include further College sanctions. In this class, every student must be aware of and adhere to the college's policy on academic honesty. Detailed procedures and processes pertaining to the Policy on Academic Honesty can be viewed at <http://www.keene.edu/policy/academichonesty.cfm>
